

BREWSTER

Do you ever wonder how your donations to National Westie Rescue are used? Brewster is a lucky little fellow who was helped because funds were available when he needed them.

Brewster is a purebred Westie found as a stray in a tiny Mississippi town by a Good Samaritan. As an animal lover, she could not stand to see him lost with no one to care for him. However with the animals she had already rescued from the streets, she could not give him a home. This nice lady placed ads to see if anyone would claim him but no one came forward. That is when Louisiana Westie Rescue stepped in to care for him. Brewster is now in foster care and has been treated successfully for heartworms, ear infections and other issues requiring tests. The tests and treatment estimates were more than this small rescue could afford so they applied for National funds.

Brewster was miserable during the necessary crating for the heartworm treatment. He is now living life to it's fullest, always on the run and quite mischievous! Like some dogs will do after being rescued or released from puppy mill type situations, he is going through a second puppy phase as an adult. This time it is in a loving environment and he is voicing his approval! At times he talks, teases the other dogs and always wants to be in the middle of things. In other words he is learning to be a true Westie! Because of your help, he is well now and will soon be neutered and placed in deserving home. He is a wonderful little guy with a loving personality!

Brewster was one of the lucky ones. A stranger took him in and made sure he went to a safe place, Westie Rescue! Without your support many will not be so lucky. Thank you!
